[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

JUNE 14, 1880. The blow of Saturday afternoon was one of the severest known in this section for a long while. For fifteen or twenty minutes the city was darkened by the great clouds of dust raised by the wind, and at times objects could not be distinguished thirty yards away. The damage in the city was comparatively light. Jackson & Co's toen factory, on High street, the cotton mill Elandford, and the residence of Mr. tially unroofed, and the steeple and roof of Grace church were slightly damaged. Some few trees were blown down and fences prostrated. The tall pole at the head of High street, which floated the flag of "Til-den. Headricks, Hinton, and Reform" in 1876, was hurled to the ground and broke to pieces. Only two accidents to persons are reported to have occurred. C. C. Mc-Kenzie (colored) was struck on the head by a failing brick and severely cut. A child, aged about ten years, was blown from the sidewalk to the middle of the street and smartly injured.

In the county, so far as beard from, the damage by the storm was confined mainly to the trees and fences, and the scattering of the wheat and out stacks in the fields. The latter was pretty general in the track of
